I understand that I am applying for chapter ABC membership, which includes membership in National ABC, listing in ABC directories, Construction Executive ($42), and the opportunity to participate in other money-saving programs. This does not guarantee acceptance into other programs such as apprenticeship training and insurance programs, which require an additional application and processing. ABC dues are non-refundable. If accepted, we will abide by the bylaws of the organization, support its objectives, comply with the merit code of ethics, and pay the dues in the category that reflects our true annual volume of business. Volume is determined by total sales in the applicant's most recently completed year (including subcontract work, material and labor). New members are required to pay one full year's dues; however, upon renewal, the unused months of the first year will be credited at the beginning of the next calendar year.

ABC dues are not deductible as a charitable contribution for federal income tax purposes, but may be partially deductible as a business expense. ABC estimates that for 2014, 22% of your dues are not deductible because they are related to lobbying activities on behalf of our members.
